George Is Slated for Vital Post

Georgia Senator Likely to Get Pittman's Job as Chairman of Foreign Relations

Way Is Cleared

Harrison Has Decided to Stick to Finance Committee

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Elevation of Senator George (D-Ga.) to the chairmanship of the Senate foreign relations committee appeared to be assured today as Senate Majority Leader Barkley called the Democratic steering committee into session (11:30 a. m., E. S. T.) to act on the vacancy created by the death of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada.

Members of the steering group said the way had been cleared for selection of George by a decision of Senator Harrison (D-Miss.) to retain his leadership of the finance committee. Harrison outranks George in service on the foreign relations committee.

Although George consistently has declined to comment on foreign affairs since it became known that he probably would head the committee, friends said it was expected that he would work in close cooperation with Secretary Hull and other state department officials.

In connection with major issues which may receive the attention of Congress in the near future, George is understood to oppose any immediate revision of the neutrality act and revision or repeal of the Johnson act prohibiting loans to nations, including Britain, which are in default on their World War debts to this country.

Favors Firm Hand
He is reported to favor a firm hand in dealing with Japan in the Far East and to advocate close cooperation with Latin-American countries for economic as well as military solidarity in the western hemisphere.

Changes in the neutrality and Johnson acts in order to aid the British war effort have been given increasing study in congressional quarters recently. Several senators have reported heavy mail urging such changes since the election campaigns in which both parties endorsed the principle of greater assistance to the British.

House and Senate were in recess for the week-end today, with the House scheduled to meet outside the Capitol building Monday for the first time in many years. The Senate will return Monday to its former chamber, down the street from its present quarters, for the first time since January 4, 1859.

Both houses agreed yesterday to move out so that carpenters and engineers could brace up the weakened roofs of their chambers.

The Senate will have pending before it, when it resumes next week, a motion by Senator Hatch (N.-M.) to take up the controversial Logan-Walter bill which would establish rules of procedure for such government agencies as the labor board and facilitate court appeals from their decisions.

It failed to act on the motion yesterday when only 45 senators, three less than the quorum needed to transact business, answered when their names were called.

Eight Teachers Dismissed

Vichy, Nov. 23 (AP)—Eight teachers, including Louis Bruntz, rector of Nancy University and Prof. J. Ducuing, noted cancer specialist at Toulouse University, were dismissed today from the teaching profession for alleged Communist activities.

Shelling Is Resumed

London, Nov. 23 (AP)—German guns resumed their sporadic shelling today across the Dover Strait.

Nazi Ultimatum Is Expected Von Papen Is Returning to Ankara From Berlin and Refuses Any Statement; Press Is Outspoken

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 23 (AP)—Sections of Turkey surrounding the strategic Dardanelles, which straddle the land route from Europe to the Near East and Africa, were under martial law today because of "the general political situation."

The Turkish government ordered Corps General Ali Riza Arzuoglu, commander of gendarmerie, to take charge of these districts last night only a short time after German Ambassador Franz Von Papen returned from Germany, presumably with a virtual ultimatum that Turkey affiliate with the Axis "new European order."

A government announcement said "the prime ministry and council of ministers as a result of its deliberation November 8 have deemed it necessary to proclaim martial law... for one month" in the districts of Istanbul, Kizilirmak, Edirne (Adrianople), Tekirdag, Canakkale and Kocaeli.

Might Carry Ultimatum
Observers expressed belief that Von Papen might be carrying a near-ultimatum proposal that Turkey, a friend of Great Britain, agree to stand aside in the event Bulgarian and German troops move to help Italy down Greece, another British friend.

Asked by Istanbul newspapermen if "normal relations" between Germany and Turkey would continue, the ambassador replied: "I have no declaration of any kind to make."

The Istanbul press reiterated statements that Turkey, while not looking for a fight, would fight if it seemed necessary.

The newspaper Ikdam mentioned that "no one is able to say that Russia would accept easily a German attack on Greece, which would carry German troops toward the Dardanelles. However, the consent of Russia would not signify that Turkey did not mean to defend herself with all her might."

Might Smash at Suez

(British military experts in London, speculating on future Axis plans, surmised that the next step might be a smash at the Suez Canal and Egypt, with one jaw of a giant pincer, the German one, aimed at the Dardanelles through Bulgaria and Greece, and the other, the Italian one, aimed at Suez from Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's advance base in western Egypt.)

(Such a smash, the experts said, would be designed primarily to end British dominance in the eastern Mediterranean and in rich Near East oil fields, but also would result in the end of Turkey and Greece as independent states, if successful.)

There were unofficial reports in Ankara that the Turkish government already was studying the problem of possible removal of civilians from Istanbul, Turkey's largest and most vulnerable city. The meeting of the council of ministers which preceded issuance of the martial law proclamation "last night was reported to have approved a strict gasoline rationing bill and to have considered food rationing possibilities."

Quarrel Develops Power in Cabinet Over Use of Plows Sought by Noted Authority on Law

Resolution to Make Snow Fund Available Passes, Then Schuler Inquires About Regulations

Adoption of the resolution to make available $50,000 for snow removal brought up a discussion Friday evening before the Board of Supervisors on whether snow was being removed from private roads by the county snow removal equipment.

On the roll call for adoption of the resolution, which was adopted unanimously, Supervisor Raymond Schuler of the Fourth ward charged that he knew of instances where snow was removed from private roads. His charge brought forth a hot but brief discussion in which several supervisors took part.

Mr. Schuler inquired whether the county trucks had the right to plow driveways out or whether this was being done for "just friends."

Supervisor Roosa of Ulster asked whether Mr. Schuler has seen private roads being cleared of snow and Supervisor Schuler said he had.

"Where was it, give us the facts, name the places," said Supervisor Roosa.

Supervisor Murray from Shawangunk said that if Schuler knew of such instances he should tell the names and instances and come in with the facts instead of simply stating generalities. He concluded with the statement that to make statements without facts or without proof indicated "a pretty poor man." He said if the supervisor had any such facts they should be laid before the board.

All in 'Proper Time'
Schuler said he would present facts at the proper time.

Chairman Wadlin stated that in some instances he assumed it would be proper for the county equipment to clear drives and he said in some instances they have. He suggested the matter be taken up with the highway committee.

At this point Supervisor Roosa said that since he had been in the board he had observed that the minority (Democratic) party had always been complaining of highway matters. In his opinion Mr. Roosa said the Ulster County Highway Department was one of the best we ever had. "I have seen the roads plowed out under Republicans and Democrats," he said and "Ulster county is one of the first counties to plow out after a storm." He also referred to its efficiency and stated that even at gas stations on the road the

Italian Anchor Troops Strive to Get Back to Pogradetz

Athens, Nov. 23 (AP)—Victory-cheered Greek cavalry and Highland regiments, claiming the rout of six crack Fascist divisions of at least 72,000 men, smashed beyond captured Koritza today for a quick test of Italy's second Albanian line of defense.

The high command told a nation in holiday mood that its army had left "not a single Italian soldier in Greek territory" and was driving Italian lines of resistance deeper into Albania from north of Koritza to the sea.

The Greeks reported taking prisoners by the hundreds as they pressed forward on the heels of their foe and said uncounted military stores were seized—guns and equipment dumped by the fleeing Italians in such quantity that it clogged the mountain roads.

(Dispatchers from Bitol, across the Yugoslav frontier, said butlered Italian defenders of Koritza were fighting their way backward toward Pogradetz on Lake Ochrida, 20 miles north of Koritza. They said Pogradetz apparently was the left flank anchor of a new Italian defense line roughly 30 miles back from the frontier along the whole 100-mile battlefield.)

Guards Main Road
(Like Koritza, which Greek troops entered victoriously yesterday with bands blaring and soldiers marching over flower-strewn streets, Pogradetz guards the main road northwest past Elbasani to the port of Durazzo, across the Adriatic from Italy.)

(The British Broadcasting Corporation carried a report last night from Belgrade that Pogradetz already had fallen to Greek advance units.)

The Greek high command declared its troops had completed the occupation of the Morava mountain range from which Italians were shelled into retreat from Koritza, and of Mount Ivan and the ridge of Kaf-Karit northeast of Koritza toward Lakes Prespa and Ochrida.

Completing its picture of the new front line, the high command said Greeks in the central Pindus mountain sector captured Leskovik and pushed on beyond the Albanian frontier towns of Erseka and Borova.

Two Local Boys Are Burned

Two youths, Jerry Ausanio of North street and Thomas Wolf, Jr., of Broadway, sustained second and third degree burns about the face and hands yesterday afternoon when they attempted to extinguish a fire in the car in which they were riding. The fire occurred as they were motoring along North street. The car, above, was destroyed.

Gillette Begins Violations Probe Of Campaign Laws

Investigators Searching Reports Made to House on Contributions to Political Drives

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Senator Gillette (D-Ia.) undertook today a search for evidence of what he called a "wholesale violation of the spirit if not the letter" of federal laws restricting expenditures in this year's political campaigns.

As chairman of the Senate committee appointed to police the elections, Gillette set investigators to searching the reports made to the clerk of the House on political contributions and expenditures. He also wrote state officials for similar reports which they receive and dispatched requests for financial information to the chairmen of Democratic and Republican committees in every state.

When the data is assembled it will be used by the committee in recommending further legislation governing campaign finances. If any evidence of outright violations of the law is developed, Gillette said, it will be turned over to the justice department for prosecution.

"I am convinced," Gillette declared, "that there was wholesale violation of the spirit if not the letter of laws limiting campaign expenditures. But actual proof of this may be difficult."

Ausanio, Wolf Are Burned Badly as Car Catches Fire

Jerry Ausanio, 20, of 272 North street, and Thomas Wolf, Jr., 22, of 340 Broadway, were burned about the hands and face Friday afternoon in a futile effort to extinguish the fire that wrecked Ausanio's sedan while they were riding along North street, near the Staples brickyard.

Ausanio was burned about the face and hands, while Wolf was burned about the face. They had the burns dressed at the Kingston Hospital where they were taken in a passing automobile. Later both left the hospital.

A backfire of the motor set the car on fire and the two young men leaped out of the car and tried to extinguish the fire by smothering it with sand, and were burned in their efforts which proved futile. The fire department was called on a still alarm, but the car was badly wrecked before the fire was extinguished.

Other fires on Friday were a grass fire on Andrew street, one off Delaware avenue; another in the rear of 284 East Chester street and one off West Chester street.

The firemen were also called for a chimney fire in the house at 34 Smith avenue, occupied by Mrs. Melissa Baker, and this morning for a chimney fire in the house off Murphy street, occupied by John Schebliski.

Leahy to Succeed Bullitt as U. S. Minister to Vichy

Retired Rear Admiral Is Now Governor of Puerto Rico; Ability Praised Highly

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today through a secretary that he would appoint Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, retired, now governor of Puerto Rico and former chief of naval operations, ambassador to France to succeed William C. Bullitt.

The secretary, William D. Hassett, said it had not been determined when Leahy's nomination would be submitted to the Senate.

Hassett told reporters: "You know what the President thinks of his naval ability. What he thinks of him as a counselor on defense, and as a man of superb all-around ability. As you know, the President depended heavily on him as chief of naval operations."

Leahy will succeed Bullitt, who submitted his resignation on November 7. Hassett said he did not know whether the resignation had been accepted formally, but that it is "safe to assume it will be."

Mr. Roosevelt had offered the French post to General John J. Pershing, but the World War A.E.F. commander declined it on advice of his physicians.

There was no indication of who might succeed Leahy as governor of Puerto Rico nor was any word forthcoming as to Bullitt's future.

Shifts Anticipated

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Several changes among United States envoys in Europe were considered in diplomatic circles here today to be imminent after President Roosevelt's disclosure that the post of ambassador to France had been offered to General John J. Pershing.

The President said at Hyde Park, N. Y., yesterday that General Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force in France during the World War, had declined appointment to the Vichy post on advice of his physicians.

The announcement carried the implication that the Chief Executive had decided to accept the resignation of Ambassador William C. Bullitt, who returned to

Antonescu Signs Pact For 10 Years

Premier Says Nation Feels That by Joining Help Is Being Given to New Order

Lineup Is Odd

Nations Which Have Been at Loggerheads Are Members

Berlin, Nov. 23 (AP)—Rumania, a foe of Germany in the World War two decades ago, joined the Nazi-sponsored Axis alliance today.

With this diplomatic stroke, Reichsfuehrer Hitler formally pushed the Axis sphere deep into the Balkans to a point less than 250 miles from the vital Dardanelles.

Rumania's premier, General Ion Antonescu, accompanying his action with flowery language, signed the pact which already linked Germany, Italy, Japan and Hungary.

The tenor of General Antonescu's remarks was that the Axis powers have victory over Britain in their grasp and that Rumania, in joining up, is helping to construct a new order.

He said Rumania joined the Axis inwardly long ago.

Contrary to expectation, Hitler was not present at the ceremony formally affiliating the Balkan nation with the original 10-year military and economic three-power pact signed by Germany, Italy and Japan September 27.

Congratulates Rumania

Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, in a brief address on behalf of the original three powers, congratulated Rumania and her leader.

"We are convinced," he asserted, "that today a further step toward final victory of our good and just cause has been taken."

He expressed joy that two nations of southeastern Europe—Hungary, which joined four days ago, and Rumania—were the first to adhere to the pact because in his opinion these states, as no others, "were victims of political interests non-indigenous to this area." He obviously meant Britain and France.

Antonescu stressed that Rumania's joining with the alliance is a "fundamental act of a new orientation of the Rumanian state"; in other words Rumania may now be expected to break more than ever with the past associated with the name of the abdicated King Carol.

Already in Rumania are German troops in unannounced numbers, sent there, officials have said, to protect the kingdom's oil-producing fields from "British sabotage" and to train the Rumanian army.

Bulgaria and Slovakia were expected in diplomatic quarters to be the next nations in southeastern Europe to affiliate with the bloc of Axis-dominated powers.

As the Rumanian-Axis bonds were sealed in the grand reception room of the chancellery, the Hungarian minister, Dome Sztójay, sat smiling at the end of the table opposite the Rumanians.

Their nations, while now bound in the same pact of alliance, have borne each other no great friendship, especially since Hungary's recent enlargement by acquisition of Transylvania from Rumania. Sztójay made no effort to congratulate his new Balkan colleagues.

At the extreme right of the table was Rumanian Foreign Minister Prince Costin Sturza attired in the green smock of the Iron Guard, and next to him sat Antonescu, red faced and grim of countenance, wearing a khaki uniform.

Ribbentrop Presides

Ribbentrop, in a grey uniform, presided.

The official announcement said Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Gino Buti, director of the political department of the Italian foreign office, and Japanese ambassador to Berlin Saburo Kurosu, on one side, and Premier-General Ion Antonescu of Rumania, on the other, signed a protocol sealing Rumania's entrance into the three-power pact.

The protocol merely stated that Rumania had become a party to the alliance, effective immediately, and—like Hungary—would be consulted on matters concerning her.

After the signing, in the same spacious chancellery where the original three-power pact was concluded, General Antonescu, who rose to power after the abdication of King Carol II last September,

Ellenville Legion Leaders Tell How Flag Should Be Shown

Flag Code in 1939 Book Reveals That Heraldry Involved

And, Says Haley, Now Is Time for Americans to Display Banner of Liberty

Ellenville, Nov. 23.—These days—with patriotism at its highest ebb—the American flag is being displayed more and more. When you show Old Glory are you sure you are doing it properly? This article will answer many questions about proper flag display and was prepared from suggestions by Commander Chester Bradford and First Vice Commander R. Earl Haley of George D. Cook Post, American Legion, Ellenville.

"For the last two years the Ellenville post has been trying to do its bit to talk Americanism, how to salute and correct display of the flag," explained Mr. Bradford yesterday. "For that reason, I think such an article would be timely. We are planning an open meeting in the Legion headquarters in the near future to discuss these same things."

Mr. Haley said he believed that the public should display the flag "wherever and whenever possible" in these days of world trouble when the strongholds of democracy are threatened by aggressor powers.

People More 'Flag Conscious'

Both agreed that people today seem to be more 'flag conscious' than ever before. They said, too, that occasional errors in display of the flag are caused by lack of knowledge of specific detail, rather than lack of respect, for the Stars and Stripes.

Based on the Flag Code, listed in the American Legion's revised 1939 Manual of Ceremonies, certain fundamental rules of heraldry govern proper display of the colors. The matter becomes simple if one keeps in mind the fact that the flag represents the living country and is itself treated as a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and, therefore, the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be hoisted briskly, but should be lowered slowly and ceremoniously. The flag should be displayed on all national and state holidays and all historic or special occasions.

However, since it is the emblem of our country, it should fly from every flagpole every day throughout the year, weather permitting.

Eight Specific Rules

Specific rules regarding the manner in which the Stars and Stripes should be displayed are illustrated in the accompanying photo-diagram and numbered according to the following regulations:

When carried in procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, i. e., the flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the Flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the American Flag should be on its own right and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

When a number of flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs with the United States Flag, the latter should be at the center of the highest point of the group.

When flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are flown from the same halyard with the American Flag, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States of America should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant flown in the former position should be placed above or in the latter portion to the right of the American Flag, i. e., to the observer's left.

When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the flag should go clear

SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVANN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston, Wednesday, only, November 27, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Mr. Shevann says: The Zopic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume. A nationally recognized scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome bandages and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments. Mr. Shevann will be glad to demonstrate without charge.

Legionnaire Explains Regulations on Displaying Flag

to the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half-staff. When the flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope, extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out from the building toward the pole, union first.

When the flag is displayed in a manner other than being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether in or outdoors. When displayed, either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes or drapings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red should be used—but never the flag.

When displayed over the middle of the street, the flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in and east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

Other Regulations

Besides illustrations shown, other regulations concerning flag display are:

When used on a speaker's platform, the American Flag, if displayed flat, should be above and behind the speaker; if flown from a staff, it should be in the position of honor, at the speaker's right. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of the platform.

Bunting of the national colors should be used to cover a speaker's desk, draping over the front of the platform and decorations, in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, white in the middle and red below.

When used for unveiling a statue or monument, the flag should form a distinctive feature during the ceremony, but the flag, itself, should never be used as the covering for the statue.

When flown at half-staff, the American flag should be hoisted to the peak and then lowered to half-staff position; but before lowering the flag for the day it should be first raised again to the peak. By half-mast is meant hauling the flag down to one-half the distance from the top and bottom of the staff. If local conditions require, divergence from this position is possible. On Memorial Day, May 30, the flag is displayed from sunrise until noon at half-staff and at full-staff from noon until sunset—the nation lites and the flag symbolizes the living nation.

Flags flown from fixed staffs are placed at half-staff to indicate mourning. When the American flag is displayed on a small staff, as when carried in a parade, mourning is indicated by attaching two streamers of black crepe to the spearhead and allowing the streamers to fall naturally. Crepe is used on the flagstaff only by order of the President.

When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should never be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried foot first.

Display in Church

When the flag is displayed in the body of the church, it should be from a staff placed in the position of honor at the congregation's right as they face the clergyman.

The service flag, state flag or other flag should be placed at the left of the congregation. If in the church or on the platform, the flag of the United States of America should be placed at the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and the other flags at his left.

When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside nor used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful, but should be destroyed by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our country.

During ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in parade or review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute.

Those in uniform should give the right-hand salute. Men in civilian clothing should remove the hat with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder—the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag in the moving column is given at the moment the flag passes.

A Sneeze and a Cough, an Ache and a Chill—It's That Old Flu Line Creeping Up the Hill

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

(P) Feature Service Writer

Washington.—The Public Health Service is watching sharply a rising curve on the nation's influenza chart.

New cases of flu are being reported at a rate 13 per cent higher than average—856 new cases for the week ending October 26 compared with a 756 median for the corresponding week over the last five years.

Officials say there is no cause as yet for national alarm but that the situation calls for close observation, particularly during November, usually the epidemic-indicator month. In the 1928-1929 epidemic, the curve of new cases rose almost vertically in November.

Watch New Vaccine

Health authorities have been heartened by the development of a prospective new weapon in the fight on the sneeze-chill-ache malady. A vaccine, reported to have shown experimentally a high degree of protection against influenza, recently was produced in the laboratories of the Rockefeller foundation.

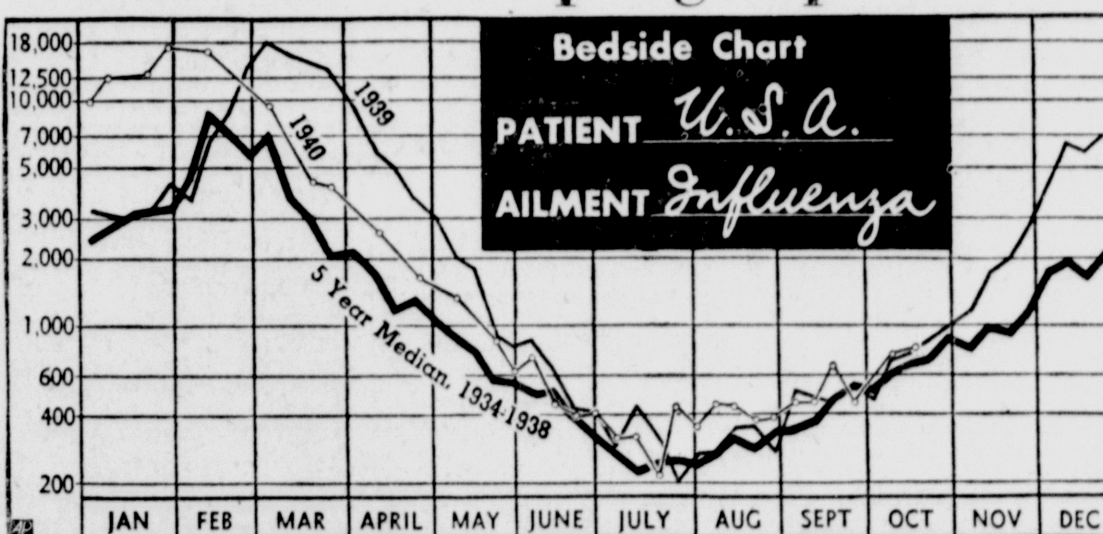

Army and navy medical officers are keenly interested in the new vaccine consisting of flu viruses and strains of distemper. In the 1918 epidemic nearly half a million persons, including thousands of men in the military service, died of flu and flu-induced pneumonia.

This year's cases in the states, as well as 100,000 last summer in Puerto Rico and 7,000 in Hawaii, have been of a comparatively mild type. Health authorities warn,

ITALIAN PRISONERS OF WAR IN ATHENS

Taken prisoner by the Greeks in fighting along the Greek-Albanian front, these Italian soldiers are given food rations in Athens by Greek guards. At the same time, Italian advisers admitted reverses in their campaign. Koritza, main military base for Italy in Albania, fell to advancing Greeks, and patriotic demonstrations in the streets of Athens rang with cries of "On to Rome!" (Picture by telephone from Belgrade to Berlin, thence by radio to New York).

This chart shows the number of new cases of the flu reported weekly to the Public Health Service, ending October 26 this year compared with 861 last year, and an average of 756 for the 1934-1938 period. If the flu curve climbs as high as it did last winter, as reported in one week.

however, that all cases should be regarded as potentially serious, because of the danger of complications.

Persons who try to keep on their feet and "stick it out" with the flu contribute the greatest number to the death rolls, because they are walking storehouses of infection and frequently succumb after unwarranted exertion.

Protective Measures

The Public Health Service recommends these general protective measures for the individual:

1. Avoid needless contact with others. Walking to and from work, if practicable, is good exercise and keeps one from overcrowded street cars and buses.

2. Avoid chilling, but take advantage of as much open air and sunshine as you can.

3. Keep up your health by using plenty of clean water internally and externally; by eating clean wholesome food, and by sleeping at least 7 hours out of each 24.

4. Avoid persons who are coughing, sneezing or sniffing. Do not cough or sneeze yourself without using a handkerchief.

Don't Take Chances With the Flu

The Public Health Service suggests the following precautions as a basis for home treatment of a flu patient when a doctor is not available:

1. Go to bed at the first sign of illness and stay there for several days after your fever is gone.
2. Drink water freely. Stay on a liquid diet during the first few days and go on soft food about the fourth day. Gradually return to normal diet.
3. Do not use cathartics; enemata are better laxatives.
4. Place all nasal and bronchial secretions in disposable tissues.
5. You may take a warm bath at the onset of attack to relieve back, head and limb pains but a warm bed and warm drink afterward are essential. Excessive sweating is dangerous.
6. Do not use medicines unless prescribed by a physician.

ing demolished. It has had all of the machinery removed and the building, because of its construction on different levels for each floor, was and is unsuited for any other industrial purpose.

There are now due about $7,000.00 in unpaid taxes on the property. If the taxes are not paid by December 7, 1940, the property becomes the property of the city of Kingston. The city would then have to complete the demolition of the building and would have on its hands a vacant lot which could be used only for residential purposes. Because of the traffic constantly passing on this part of Route 9-W, probably no purchaser could be found who would bid the property in for residential purposes. The city would then not only lose the entire $7,000.00 in present unpaid taxes, but would lose about $1,700.00 in taxes for 1941, because the property is still on the 1941 assessment roll assessed at $35,000.00. Not only that, but it would have to pay the cost of shoveling walks and maintaining the property by the city.

The present owners, who have sunk thousands of dollars in the property, have an opportunity to lease the property to a local oil concern for a filling station. Before the oil company will buy or lease the property it must know that the property can be legally used as a filling station. It cannot be legally used unless the council amends the zoning law and places the property in the business zone.

If the council takes this action, the present owners will lease the property to the oil company, the oil company will pay the back taxes, amounting to $7,000.00, the 1941 taxes amounting to about $1,700.00, making a total of $8,700.00, and taxes from 1942 and thereafter on about a $10,000.00 assessment for a modern filling station, which will mean an annual tax revenue of $500.00 for general and school taxes.

In other words, if the council does not permit the present owner to lease the property for a filling station, the city will lose $8,700.00 in cash and about $500.00 a year from 1942 and each year thereafter.

So far as the traffic safety is concerned, if the brewery is removed the sight distance for traffic coming out of McEntee street will be greatly improved and the corner of McEntee street and Wurts street can be greatly widened and the corner made much safer for traffic. The police chief has stated that the improvement which would be brought about by the substitution of a filling station for the present brewery would make for safer traffic.

So far as objectionableness is concerned, a modern, well kept filling station is much less objectionable than a noisy, smelly brewery.

If the property is leased for a filling station, employment will be provided to men to build the station and the grounds. Men will also be employed to operate the station.

If the property is retained by the city, no employment will result.

Strong Hint

Hartford, Conn.—Three carved wooden skunks surround a community chest collection box in the Trinity College administration office. To puzzled queries of "Why the skunks," the office force answers in chorus: "Even a skunk leaves a scent." Few have missed the hint.

Costly Achievement

Newport News, Va.—Harry Savage won the distinction of bagging the first deer of the season—three hours after the season's opening—but it was costly. He ran down the deer with his automobile and ran up a repair bill of about $175.

Revolving Fund

Eureka, Calif.—It was a self liquidating turkey they had at the Rudy Reidel's for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Reidel paid $3.65 for it and found a gold nugget worth $4.86 in the crop.

Hidden Silver

Peoria, Ill.—Carl Kaebel's Thanksgiving dinner was much more reasonable than he expected. He found a silver dollar in the gizzard of his turkey.

Job Security

Creston, Ia.—Declaring "this is one way I can get a job," William McLaughlin, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for county auditor, volunteered in the army.

Soybeans now are used in the manufacture of candy, cosmetic creams, hair tonic and leather dressing.

A New Yorker recently took a necktie into a Fifth Avenue establishment to be repaired, pointing out it had had considerable wear since 1912 when he won it by betting on Woodrow Wilson.

THE EMBLEM

In this issue of The Freeman is a photograph of some of the regulations governing display of the flag—the emblem of American liberty. The display of the American flag is becoming increasingly popular and its proper usage is of the first importance.

In these days when the eagles of war are screaming through the clouds of Europe and there is fear and doubt and hesitation about the chances of peace even in America, we can do nothing better than to rededicate our faith in the continuation of constitutional government as emblemized in Old Glory. Let us therefore read the words of A. W. Hawkes on the Flag:

"I as your flag, represent true democracy in the representative form. I am only 163 years old, but before I took form and became a reality, millions of people throughout the world had given up their lives trying to give me birth . . .

"If you would not fail me, you will preserve me in what I represent for you and those to follow. Your work in preserving me is only the fulfillment of your obligation to principle and justice and those who created me for you. They gave to you, through me, liberty and freedom and the opportunity for individual accomplishment—fair reward for services and the protection of the law in the rightful enjoyment of property legally acquired.

"I leave you this thought: I, your flag, will mean just what you make me mean. I will stand for you and what you are and what you do. I can be no more and no less than the representative of your character, courage and nobility of purpose. I hope you will never forsake the things I stand for and I hope your acts will enable me always to hold my head high any place on earth, proceeding always in the interest of justice, in the support of the will of God on earth, and in promoting the development of mankind in rightful happiness.

"May you never forget your obligation in return for your privileges—and remember, I shall be with you always, if you make me stay."

USEFUL HANDS

American ingenuity finds expression in no more delightful way than in the making of toys for children. Electric stoves which really cook, animals which do tricks when wound up, dolls which do things they shouldn't as well as those they should all become parts of a joyful Christmas. The electric trains which the grown-ups enjoy so much is but one of a myriad mechanical toys growing out of our industrial civilization.

All of these things have their place, and they are not to be dismissed with a wave of the hand. Children not only enjoy them but they learn from them. But the toys which have some creative possibilities for their owners are best. The set out of which the child can build bridges and derricks combines well with the train. So do the blocks which can be made to serve them both. The building of a city which need not be taken down and put away at night is a project worth any child's endeavor, and any parent's putting up with a little dust and litter for a few weeks.

For the young child the simple toys by which he learns to use his hands are the great means of education. The possibilities of simple carpentry can hardly be overestimated. The actual use and development of the muscles of the hands is extremely valuable. Character is developed by trying and failing and trying again till success crowns effort.

And in this strange era into which the whole world now moves, useful hands may be needed more than ever before to set man or woman on the path of competent and happy life.

HEAVING EARTH

If you're a fellow who longs for a more stable world, you'd better not pay any attention to the findings of Dr. Beno Gutenberg, seismologist at the California Institute of Technology. They are most upsetting.

Sea level over the world has risen four inches in the past 100 years, he says, and is still rising. The southern part of Hudson Bay is rising so that in 30,000 to 40,000 years that great arm of the sea will be the size of a millpond. The northern part of Lake Superior has risen almost two feet in a century. The land south of a line running through Boston, Cleveland and Milwaukee is slowly sinking. In California it is sinking at the rate of three inches in 100 years.

The earth's crust, the instruments show, rests on a sort of fluid cushion. When weight is lifted from one place, that area rises. Fluid flows in from surrounding areas, lowering them. Areas that lay under the great glaciers have been steadily rising as the glacier receded and may rise still more, but the movement will become progressively slower.

The rise in sea levels is caused by changes on the ocean floor, melting ice and sediment carried down by rivers.

Thank goodness all this is measured in inches and centuries. Otherwise we'd be a bit dizzy and seasick, not to say scared.

ARMAMENT EXPENSES

Government expenditures for defense, says Hartley W. Barclay, a Washington business man, will reach $1,000,000,000 a month next November.

By that time we should have an emergency taxation system that would take care of at least half of that as we go along. We can't leave it all for the next generation to pay—although it should be ready to pay its share if we do a good job.

And how can we pay heavier taxes? It could and should be the natural fruit of business expansion, higher profits and perhaps higher wages, too. Mr. Barclay believes that by a year and a half from now, the expansion now under way will have absorbed all the unemployed who are able to work.

That would probably make a national income somewhere around $100,000,000,000 a year, and taxes of one kind or another should be collected, in fair proportion, from all who benefit by the defense-stimulated expansion.

There might be more interest in helping Spain financially if that country's foreign minister didn't go to Berchtesgaden to tea so often.

SANATORIUM BEST FOR TB PATIENTS

When a patient with a persistent cough is losing weight, the first thought is of tuberculosis. By the help of the X-ray early tuberculosis, if present can be shown. Once tuberculosis is found, the most important part of the treatment is rest and these patients are put to bed for weeks, months, and even years.

It is in these early cases when the patient has been going to school or work that the patient himself or his family cannot understand why he should not be treated at home. They point out a very significant fact and that is that if rest is needed most, the patient can certainly rest better in his own home than in a room or ward in a sanatorium where he will be lonely, unhappy, unable to sleep, and his appetite will be poor because the food and the way it is served may be strange.

Now there is no denying the fact that there is no place like home where there are two important facts that the patient and his family do not know. The first point is that as the patient has developed tuberculosis, there is therefore a tendency to tuberculosis in the family. The fact that there is this tendency means that as long as the patient remains in the home there is always the chance of him infecting "there is nothing that the health department or physicians and nurses visit the home and give instructions in preventing others from being infected. "There is nothing that the health department can do in the way of sanitary control of the patient at home, or to separate the sick from the well, compares for effectiveness with hospital or sanatorium care as a means of stopping the spread of infection."

The second great advantage of hospital care of tuberculosis is that when more than bed rest is suddenly or urgently needed, the great variety of operations to make the lung rest are available in the sanatorium. These operations require a degree of surgical expertise which can be developed best only in a special tuberculosis hospital.

Should your physician recommend the tuberculosis sanatorium for you or a loved one, remember the two points above mentioned, for the patient's own sake and for the sake of other members of the household.

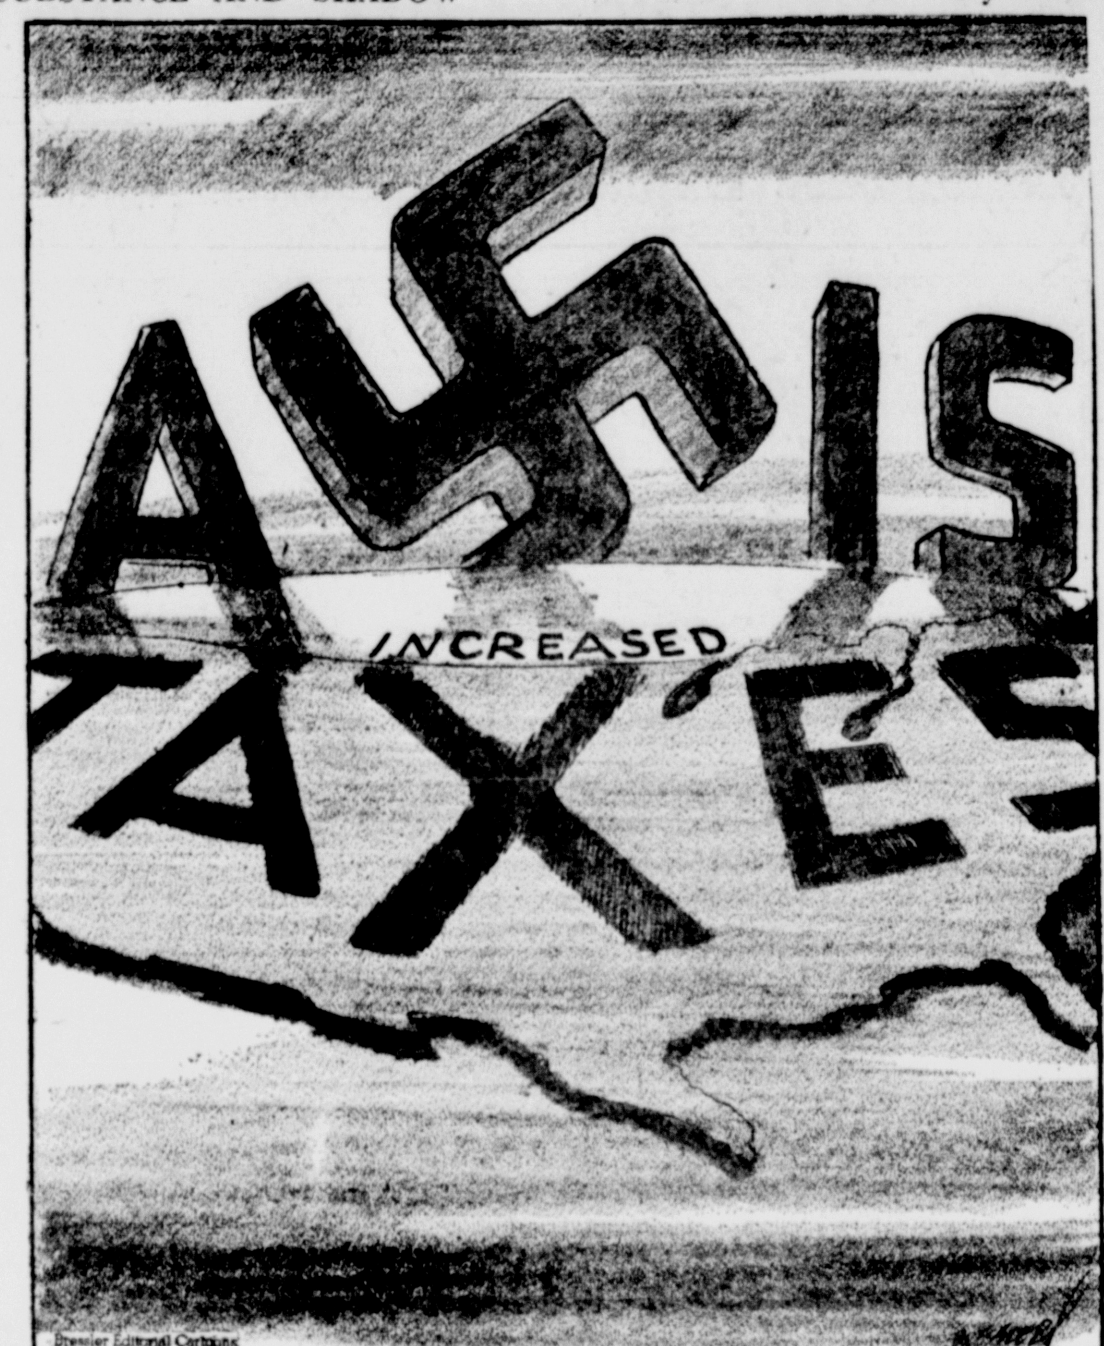

Overweight and Underweight

Overweight may be a forerunner of diabetes, failing heart and other serious ailments. Underweight is often a forerunner of tuberculosis. THIS IS THE LIFE!

The Army Looks to Its Kitchens To Put Ruggedness in the Ranks

This is the fourth of six articles describing the army camp life draftees will lead.

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—The cooks have already qualified for most of the medals in the draft army.

The army asks only to be judged on results, not special meals or recipes. If you're a whiz at pumpkin pie, Mother, they won't even try to compete. They say theirs is good. That's all. But they'll stack their day-in-day-out menus against you.

In the end the army thinks it'll produce healthier men. For army men suspect mothers encourage their boys in indigestible directions and unbalanced diets. (They can't prove it, though.)

In the draft army it'll be breakfast, dinner and supper, with the accent on dinner in the middle of the day. Choice of coffee, tea, or milk every meal. Cafeteria style, mostly.

On four days a year, the army really stuffs, Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Years, and Organization day. That last is the anniversary of the date a particular regiment was organized. On these days there'll be two kinds of meat, four vegetables, two kinds of desserts, candy, fruit, nuts, and all the trimmings, except hard liquor.

Here's a sample menu for the ordinary day:
Breakfast—Fruit, toast, cereal, bacon and eggs, coffee, tea or milk.
Dinner—Soup, meat, mashed potatoes and gravy, string beans, peas, pie, coffee, tea or milk.
Supper—Salad, cold meat cuts, steamed potatoes, cookies, coffee, tea or milk.
In the field, the men'll get the equivalent in cans, with accent on slum gullion of one kind or another.

And, Mom, P. S.: If you're from New England, the army says please try to be lenient. Don't ask 'em to serve pie and baked beans for breakfast. Nobody but New Englanders will eat that chow at 7 a. m.
Tomorrow: There'll be plenty of hard work.

Most Vexing Problem Before Nation Is Same as in World War: How to Maintain Production, Pacify Labor
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 23.—The same problem that vexed the nation early in the days of the last World War has arisen again—how to avoid interruptions to production through labor disputes.

The experience of the defense advisory commission, and notably Sidney Hillman, labor member, in encountering without warning a strike in the Vultee Aircraft Plant has arched a good many eyebrows here. For it is realized that sooner or later this sort of development must be faced firmly.

The management of the Vultee plant has asked for a no-strike clause in its contract, but this in itself is not sufficient, because one or the other of the disputants can nullify it if action is taken on some other clause that produces a dispute.

What is needed is some kind of assurance through the war department which will bring both parties into conference under business auspices the moment any issue arises which could possibly threaten a strike. The same conditions that are now imposed by the national mediation act for the railroads could as well be applied to defense contractors. This provides that there must be a cooling-off period within which definite and specific steps are taken to bring about an agreement. The compulsory waiting does not prevent a strike, but merely allows for certain stated opportunities to arise whereby settlements can be effected locally, or referred to national headquarters of the unions.

When a labor group can order a strike at any minute without regard to the public interest, especially during work on a vital contract in the defense program, the government finds itself at the mercy of local union leaders, some of whom do not even refer the question of a strike to their national leadership.

During the last war a special labor board was organized and there were many informal understandings between labor union executives and the board which prevented strikes from coming to a head. It is, therefore, not a provision to bar all strikes which is needed, for this would be obtainable anyhow—but some procedure which would tend to postpone or even eliminate the need for the strike call itself. The public may not realize the extent to which sabotage is possible through use of the strike weapon. Left-wing influences are well known to exist in America's labor unions and it is a simple matter for pressure to be exerted among employees engaged in the fabrication of some important part or the supplying of raw materials so that production as a whole is seriously interrupted.

The Congress restirred itself a few months ago about the Russell-Overtown amendment. Cries were raised that the government must have the power to take over any plant in which the owner refused to come to an agreement on prices with the war and navy departments. Considerable hullabaloo was raised about drafting men and drafting industry. But nobody in politics ventured to ask for a no-strike clause.

Yet today, if strikes multiply, there will be a demand by public opinion for the assertion of governmental power to compel those who call strikes to answer to some higher authority. It is not possible of course, to force any man to work against his own will, but the right of an individual to foment a strike on a defense project might well be covered by the war powers or the powers inherent in the national defense laws themselves.

At first blush it would seem as if the top leaders of the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. would be able to prevent sporadic strikes from arising and that a word to them would be ample. The truth is the national leadership of both major labor organizations is patriotic and cooperative. The trouble is with the autonomous local unions which are a law unto themselves. It is this lack of discipline within labor organizations that accounts for most of the disputes that arise.

The powerful white light of publicity would do more than any other influence to correct this situation if the evidence of left-wing sabotage were always available. But those, to whose interest it is to provoke the calling of strikes, operate indirectly through invisible channels and there aren't enough government detectives or agents to keep up with the machinations of the subversive elements which form contacts with American labor groups, sometimes undermining innocent officers and sometimes working directly with them by playing on their ambitions or by inciting weaving trouble into their own organization policies.

Of one thing the public can be assured—the national leaders of labor unions want to avoid strikes and interruptions of production and will go a long way to accomplish that objective; but the difficulties are local and they are unquestionably tied into the efforts of agents of foreign governments whose activities in blowing up plants are naturally matched by their efforts to cause delays in production, especially in bottleneck industries where there are shortages.

Churchill, Man.—The "Northern Lights have seen queer sights" but one of the most humorous was the sight of a trapper running from a cabin in Churchill, on Hudson Bay, to the Hudson's Bay railway station with a wash basin in his hand. The trapper had to make the Tuesday train or wait three days for another. Firmly frozen in ice which had formed in the wash basin during the night in his room, was the trapper's upper plate of "store teeth." Unable to release the teeth in time to make the bi-weekly winter train to Winnipeg, the trapper "borrowed" the basin and thawed out the teeth in one of the warm coaches.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY, First Aunt Maggie was murdered. Then it was found impossible either to telephone the police, or to go to them, because of a blinding storm and the fact that someone had let the air out of all the tires on all the cars. And now Sally has left Bill, her husband, on guard and has gone to her room and slept. But neither she nor the other guests at what had been intended as a quiet house-party have had much rest. A murderer is, they are convinced, still in the house.

Chapter 16 No Answer

WHEN I awakened at a little after eight o'clock in the morning I discovered that the fastening of one of the window blinds had come loose in the night.

This was, no doubt, responsible for the cold draft which had blown across me in my dream, but I still had an uncomfortable feeling that the secret of the hidden room might be somewhere right under my nose. After all, this was the room in which the warning message had been left.

But a hurried survey revealed no clue. Later, I would make a more thorough examination. Just now I could not hurry fast enough with my bathing and dressing, so anxiously was I for the comfort of Bill's nearness, his reassurance that daylight meant a straightening out of at least some of our difficulties.

The rain had stopped in the night, but the sky was leaden, as though a downpour might begin at any moment. On the way downstairs I remembered the matches I had lost the night before somewhere near the landing. They were easy enough to find this morning, but, except for the fact that I had automatically looked for them along the way, I should have passed unnoticed a small scrap of rose-colored taffeta which evidently had been snagged off by a nail projecting from one of the rounds supporting the stair rail. Of course, the nail should not have been there in the first place, and it was easy to see that it had been used in a crude attempt to repair a split in one of the delicate rounds.

"Some of Thomas's work," I told myself, with a mental note to have the repair looked after properly.

Thomas had been my grandmother's gardener and general handy man for many years, and as she had grown older he had grown a bit slovenly. He and Lindy, his wife, had lived in the servants' quarters back of the house until a month or so ago, when they had moved to a tenant house about a quarter of a mile distant.

It occurred to me now that I might question Thomas along with Bessie and Andrew about the secret room.

Thinking of all this, I picked up the small piece of silk as any housewife would. I noticed that tiny feathers or down clung to the cloth and wondered idly where such a scrap could have come from. Then I remembered that Alice had been wearing a rose quilted robe the night before.

But Alice had said she went only to the head of the stairs. I stuffed the matches and the bit of silk into a pocket of my red cardigan and hurried on to the dining room. Bill, usually almost too bright and cheerful in the mornings, now looked like death warmed over. The knot on his head had gone down, but the discoloration had spread to the area around his eye.

Nobody else appeared to be up and Bill explained that Andrew had set out on foot for Roswell, "to spread the alarm," and also to try to stir up an electrician and a wrecker for the cars.

"Of course, it's Sunday, and everything will probably be shut up in Roswell," he added. "But, anyway, Andrew can at least find a telephone."

"I'm glad it is Sunday," I said. "Maybe, we can get everything cleared up today and there won't be a lot of wild headlines in the papers."

"Of course, there's the radio," Bill reminded me. "Don't they have news broadcasts on Sunday?"

Red Light
WHAT little appetite I had disappeared as I followed this gloomy trail of thought, but at Bill's insistence I forced down toast and coffee. At the same time I related to him the reason for my trip downstairs in the small hours of the morning.

Neither Kirk nor I had mentioned to Bill the fact that the sheet over Aunt Maggie had been disturbed. I had purposely omitted discussing it and Kirk, I am sure, had refrained out of consideration for me.

This ghastly detail now impressed Bill where he might otherwise have been inclined to try to explain away my theory that the secret room was in some way connected with Aunt Maggie's death. "It's possible you are right," he admitted. "God knows there must be some reason back of it all. But why on earth didn't you let me go on this little research expedition?"

"I was trying to let you get some sleep," I said. "Besides, it all seemed so crazy. I didn't know what you would say. My consideration didn't work out exactly as it should have. But naturally, I didn't expect you to be running into gorillas or to have mirrors rise up and sock you on the head."

Bessie padded in, bringing fresh toast. "Funny to me," she grumbled, "looking glasses jumpin' down off the wall all by themselves and hittin' folks. Somethin' evil in this here house. Miss Sally, we goin' back to town today, ain't we?"

Bill and I both said we hoped so and tried to explain that Bill had knocked against the mirror and that the fastening was no doubt ready to give way. But Bessie remained firm in her conviction. "Somethin' evil in this here house," she reiterated, as she went back to the kitchen.

Bill was as much in the dark as I with regard to the red light and inclined to think I had imagined it. I was none too sure myself, and yet why would I pick out a red light to imagine?

"The trees are thinner there," I pointed out. "It's that long sweep of lawn with the cherry laurel hedge and the trees and that curve of the road just beyond. It could have been the tail-light of a car."

"But all the cars are in the back yard, just as they were last night," said Bill. "All of 'em with flat tires. And both Andrew and I tried to start the station wagon this morning. Anyway, no car could have negotiated that mud."

"Perhaps it was a car from the outside."

"A car that turned around and went back? I get you," said Bill. "but why?"

"You tell me why," I suggested. "Look here," said Bill suddenly, "did you have any crazy relatives?"

"All of them are more or less crazy, according to what you've always seemed to think," I answered, with a feeble attempt at lightness.

"No, I mean would any of them be likely to be shut up here in this so-called secret room? You know how people sometimes are about admitting such things. Try to hide the afflicted one away."

"Well, I never heard of anything of the sort," I said. "Of course, Grandmother did die rather suddenly. There wasn't any chance for her to tell anybody anything. That is, of course, if there was anything to tell."

"I only thought of it as a possible explanation," Bill said.

Cryptic Paper
"SPEAKING of crazy relatives," I said slowly, "that makes me wonder . . . There was some sort of jingle set aside in Aunt Maggie's papers when I came out here yesterday. When I didn't see it that night, I thought she had put it away. Do you suppose?"

"The clue, you mean?" asked Bill, his face brightening. "What did it say?"

"That's the trouble. I can't remember. It was all a mixed-up jumble, something about hands and feet and steps. I thought Aunt Maggie had set it aside as a curiosity. You don't suppose it was a reducing exercise?"

"I don't think they bothered very much about such things back in those days," said Bill. "Sure you can't make head or tail of it?"

"I shook my head hopelessly. 'Anyway, it may not have been the clue. I'll look in Aunt Maggie's papers. But first I want to speak to Bessie.'"

"And I want a shave and a bath," said Bill.

In the kitchen I tactfully broached the subject of the secret room. But I got exactly nowhere. Bessie swore she had never heard of any secret room in the house, nor had she heard any sort of remark at any time which might indicate an unseemly interest on the part of anyone else, white or black.

A knock sounded on the kitchen door just as I was leaving, and when Bessie opened it Thomas came shuffling in, hat in hand.

"Mornin', Miss Bessie," I heard him say, and then as he caught sight of me, "Mornin', Miss Sally. I come to see if I could help Andrew and Bessie some, seein' as how Lindy couldn't come. Andrew come over to my house Friday and say you want Lindy to help, but she ain't home. She gone to visit her sick aunt."

Like all his people, whatever their usual disregard of broad "a's," Thomas pronounced it a'h'nt. "Yes'm, her a'h'nt is sick."

"I hope she isn't very sick," I said absently. "When did Lindy go?"

Thomas stuttered and seemed unable to remember. "Day before yesterday," I think it was, Miss Sally. Yes'm, the wend day before yesterday." While this hesitation struck me as a little odd, I decided that perhaps Lindy had gone after Andrew's visit and that Thomas was embarrassed by the fact.

"Thomas," I said, "have you ever heard of a secret room at Wisteria Hall?"

"Have I ever heard of what, Miss Sally?"

"A secret room," I repeated, knowing very well he had understood me the first time. "Think, Thomas."

"I don't rightly remember. Miss Sally. Seems as how I did hear your gran'ma say somethin' 'bout one."

Some careless drivers are drunk, some are angry, and hence not in full possession of their faculties, and still others just do not know any better.

Sheriff—Did you catch that automobile thief?
Deputy—Nope. We had chased him only six blocks when our 500 miles was up and we had to stop and change the oil.

People who haven't time to stop at a grade-crossing manage to find time to attend the funeral.

Traffic Officer—Here, you can't make a turn to the right!
Lady Motorist—Why not?

No one should be peeved if he is summoned for driving through stop signs, for they have been installed as safety measures and everyone knows of certain drivers who stop only when an officer is in the vicinity.

Edwin—Do you believe in that old saying about "seeing is believing?"
Edith—Certainly not. For instance, I see you every day.

Be a self-starter and do not make a crank out of the "boss."

Frank—I always say what I think.
Ruth—I wondered why you were always so quiet.

The fellow in the old days who died with his boots on was a bad man, but today he is nothing but a pedestrian.

Albert—So you have been singing in the choir?
Miriam—Yes.

Albert—What part?
Miriam—Well, I went in as first bass, but they changed it to short stop when they heard my voice.

The velvet softness of her cheek cannot be praised too much; She truly has the kind of skin you all would love to touch.

And yet she has one grievous fault for which she can't atone: With all her outward loveliness her heart is but a stone!

Wife—I'm reading a mystery book.
Husband—Why, that looks like our household budget.

Wife—It is.

A Man and a Dog . . . A man and a dog reached a downtown intersection at the same time the other afternoon when the super-hour traffic was at its peak. The dog stopped on the curb, after taking a look in all directions.

The man started to barge on across, heedless of a changing light signal, and barely escaped being run down by a car careening around the corner. He made a wild leap back to safety and turned to see the dog looking at him in a gravely questioning way. Then the mongrel—for he was nothing more than that and not supposed to be especially smart—took another look to see that the way was clear, then trotted sedately across the street as if wishing to have nothing further to do with such a dumb human.

We were taught in school that man is the highest form of animal life, with the greatest mentality. But witnessing a scene like that makes one wonder if perhaps the textbooks weren't taking in a little too much territory.

City Visitor—What became of that other windmill that was here last year?
Farmer—We took it down because there was only enough wind for one.

Stock Averages Lower on Friday

Retail Trade Expected to Hit High Mark in Next Four Weeks

Stock averages closed irregularly lower Friday in volume of 710,000 shares vs. 810,000 on Wednesday. The Dow-Jones industrials, which lost 2.96 points Wednesday, dropped a further .48 on Friday, to close at 131.74, and utilities were off .01, to 20.31. The rails showed an advance of .19, to 29.37. Prices softened in late dealings and close was at the lowest level in the day.

Domestic news as a rule remained encouraging. Barron's business index went to a new high for the current month, standing at 12 for the past week as against 10.4 per cent of normal. Steel production remains at high levels. Carloadings of 745,295 cars for the week ended November 16 was a month and a half above the previous week, hampering of traffic by the severe storm over the Great Lakes being the chief factor. The foreign news in some aspects was a bit more encouraging than before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Indications are seen that retail trade during the next four weeks will be ahead of any like period during the past ten years. The brisk consumer buying being noted is expected to show continued improvement until Christmas and it is estimated that in the department store field alone sales for the period will exceed $1,300,000,000. In the New York Reserve District area department store sales for the week ended November 16 were 16 per cent above last year, which in turn were more than three per cent above 1938.

Commodity prices, which broke sharply Wednesday, the index losing nearly a point, regained part of the lost ground Friday. Wheat turned upward on news from the Balkans and closed with gains of 1/16 to 3/16 cent a bushel. Cotton gained 1/16 to 1/16 points. Rubber and hides featured the rise, although world sugar futures were heavy and there were rumors that further domestic sugar futures sold undercover at 2.85 cents a pound, the present spot price.

Divorce Granted To Rita Comeau

Ellenville Woman Is Given Interlocutory Decree

Rita Comeau of Ellenville has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, John M. Comeau, who did not defend the action. John A. Bonomi appeared for plaintiff when the action was tried before Justice Francis Bergan.

Under the decree of the court the plaintiff is authorized to resume her maiden name, Rita Vail, and is given custody of a child whose name may also be changed to John Vail.

The parties were married at Ellenville and the acts upon which the decree is granted are alleged to have taken place last August at one of Wright's Cottages, Indian Springs, near Pine Bush.

Mrs. Bogart Dies

Hollywood, Nov. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Maude Humphrey Bogart, 75, mother of Screen Actor Humphrey Bogart and a noted artist in her own right, died last night. Mrs. Bogart was born in Rochester, N. Y. Her drawings often were used on magazine covers. She was noted, too, as an illustrator of children's books. The widow of Dr. Belmont De Forest Bogart, New York surgeon, she is survived also by a daughter, Mrs. Frances Rose of New York city.

declared the step was taken in the interests of peace.

"An effective tool for the reorganization of Europe and the world has been created by the three-power pact," he asserted.

The premier said efforts of the past two decades to "secure a durable peace" failed because they were founded on "empty rhetoric of conferences, ideologies which were under the domination of reprehensible interests of destructive forces."

Must Destroy Fiction

"This new order of Europe and the world must destroy all fiction and annihilate all occult forces on which the construction of yesterday rested and which imposed the present war," he continued.

The signing, Antonescu declared, represented "an honest action of the Rumanian people for the reconstruction of Europe and the world as well as for defense of the present day civilization which will be rendered secure by the victory of states united in the three-power pact."

Envoys of Bulgaria and Slovakia are expected in Berlin next week. (Although Soviet Russia was reported in Sofia to have advised Bulgaria to steer clear of outright membership in the alliance, most observers believe the Little Kingdom will become a full partner.

(In Moscow, meanwhile, Tass, official Soviet Russian news agency, accused the German newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt of asserting that Hungarian adherence had Russia's cooperation and approval and declared it was "authorized to state that this report does not correspond to fact in any extent."

Gen. Antonescu and Prince Sturza were to talk today with Reich Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's first subordinate, and Nazi Party Leader Rudolf Hess, who ranks only behind Goering in the Nazi hierarchy.

The Rumanians were guests last night at a resplendent dinner tendered them by Von Ribbentrop at the Hotel Adlon and attended by Italian, Japanese and Hungarian diplomats.

Dinner Planned For Volunteers

Eight Scheduled to Leave City to Be Guests

At a meeting Friday evening between Mayor C. J. Heiselman and members of the Common Council it was voted to give the eight volunteers forming Kingston's first unit in the U. S. Army a farewell dinner at the Kirkland Hotel Monday evening at 6 o'clock. Plans were also made last night for a parade in honor of the volunteers to be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mayor Heiselman when seen today said that as soon as he learned that Kingston's quota would leave Tuesday morning that he and the aldermen met and arranged to hold the farewell dinner. In addition to the mayor, members of the council and city officials, the members of Kingston's Selective Service Board and the National Defense Committee were invited to attend the dinner.

Chairman Sam Stern of the Kingston draft board said today that it was decided to hold a parade for the volunteers Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The parade would form at the corner of Delaware and Broadway and march up Broadway as far as Academy Park.

The parade will be headed by the Sons of the Legion Drum Corps and members of Kingston Post of the American Legion will march. The draft board will also head the parade, and all citizens wishing to pay honor to the boys are invited to take part in the parade.

Kingston's quota of eight men will leave on the West Shore railroad train at 7:42 o'clock Tuesday morning for New York city, and will be inducted into service at the 105th Field Artillery armory, 166th street and Franklin avenue, the Bronx, where they will be given another physical examination and assigned to a military training camp.

Jeffres Is Fined On Still Charge

North Street Negro Pleads Guilty in City Court

Garfield Jeffres, 36, a negro of 22 North street, pleaded guilty to the possession of the still found in the ruins of the burned barn on Glen street on Wednesday by the fire department. The hearing had been adjourned until today.

Judge Matthew V. Cahill, who represented Jeffres, called the court's attention to the fact that this was the first time that Jeffres had been in trouble, and urged leniency.

Edward Bradford of the Strand and Bernard P. Connor of Ellenville, both charged with public intoxication, were held for a hearing later.

Helen Reese of 120 Broadway, charged with public intoxication, was given a suspended sentence. She told Judge Cahill that while she was standing in front of her home she saw the police car passing and called to the officers to stop and arrest her. She said the car stopped and she got into it.

Clarence J. Barreto of Millerton, charged with overtime parking, forfeited $2 bail.

Lura Downs Gets Decree of Divorce

Plaintiff Gets Permission to Use Own Name

Lura R. Downs has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Willis Eugene Downs. Joseph Koopman appeared for plaintiff in the action which was tried before Judge Harry E. Schirick at Monticello this month.

Under the decree the plaintiff is awarded $10 a week alimony for the support of herself and her child. Custody of the child is awarded to the plaintiff who is also granted permission to resume her maiden name, Lura R. Garrett. Plaintiff may remarry but the defendant is forbidden to remarry except with the express permission of the court.

Committees to Meet

Meeting of the committees in charge of the coming card party of St. Joseph's Church will be held at the school hall Monday night at 8:30 and it is desired that all members of the committee be present.

County Seal Sale May Be Greatest

Preparations Under Way for Better Results

The Ulster County Tuberculosis Association is now making preparations for the most successful Christmas Seal sale in history.

The supplies are better than ever. The Christmas Seal itself is one of the most attractive ever produced. Much preliminary work has gone on in checking lists and analyzing the Seal sale for greater results in 1940.

Judge Joseph M. Fowler, who for the past 32 years has served as president of the committee and general chairman of the Christmas Seal sale, has named the following committees in the various townships.

Esopus, Dr. George Ross; Hurley, Mrs. Claude Palen; Hardenburgh, Mrs. Orson Haynes; Kerhonkson, Miss Abigail Stokes; Lloyd, Mrs. E. G. Bradt; Marlborough, Mrs. Glen Clark; New Paltz, Mrs. Raymond Morris; Olive, Miss Edna Longyear and Miss Helen D. Marshall; Saugerties, Mrs. Fabian Russell; Shawangunk, Mrs. W. H. Cruikshank; Shawangunk, Mrs. L. C. Edsall; Wawarsing, Mrs. Dorothy Hockett and Woodstock, Mrs. Marion Bulard.

Housing Group Needs Space for Visiting Grangers

The housing committee of the Kingston Industrial Bureau, which has assumed the duty of making reservations for delegates to the coming annual convention of the New York State Grange, still needs accommodations for about 200 persons. The State Grange meets in Kingston December 9 to 13, inclusive.

The committee met Friday at the auditorium, with John J. Egan presiding as chairman. Reports showed that including all hotels and tourist places and a number of private homes they have accommodations for about 850 listed. Since the attendance at the four days' meeting will be 1,000 to 1,200, additional accommodations must be secured.

If possible the committee would like to obtain additional rooms in the central part of the city within easy walking distance of the auditorium.

Arrangements have been made by the committee with the Y. M. C. A. and the American Legion Auxiliary, in addition to nearby hotels and restaurants, to secure lunches to delegates during the convention.

The committee in charge is composed of John J. Egan, Harry B. Walker, Stanley Dempsey, Allan A. Hanstein, Wilson V. Boyce. Details of the arrangements are being handled by Harry Kaehrig, clerk of the industrial bureau, at the city hall.

Anyone having rooms available should call 2848.

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Frost Time Means More Food on the Table

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service)

Crisp autumn days are here again and with them comes the call for sturdier foods. Meals need not be especially rich or expensive, but they should be substantial enough to meet the needs of a more active family.

Baking gets heavier. A fruit nut loaf or raisin bread makes a hit in sandwiches for lunch boxes. There will be no late breakfast comers when coffee cake is on the menu. Spicy nut cookies are bound to satisfy extra-hungry kitchen raiders.

Molasses refrigerator cookies are a boon to the busy homemaker. They can be baked as needed and they answer many food calls. Cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup fat with 1 cup brown sugar. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, beaten, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup molasses, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, a teaspoon each of cloves, nutmeg and ginger, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter-milk and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup raisins. Beat thoroughly and mix in $3\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour, 1 teaspoon each of soda and baking powder. Chill the dough. Drop portions of the dough from the top of a spoon onto greased baking sheets. Bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven.

For a breakfast or luncheon treat here is Cranberry Ring, gay and sprightly and introducing a delicious new flavor. Mix together 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{3}$ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons fat, melted, and $\frac{2}{3}$ cup milk. Pour the soft dough into a well greased ring or round pan. Cover lightly with regular cranberry sauce and sprinkle with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup dark brown sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons flour, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon cinnamon and 3 tablespoons butter. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven.

If you like peanut butter, you'll like these peanut butter cinnamon rolls.

Nuts put pumpkin pie on a pedestal. Make the filling like this: Mix $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups cooked, mashed pumpkin into 1 cup dark brown sugar, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each of ginger, mace and nutmeg. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 beaten eggs, 1 cup milk and $1\frac{1}{3}$ cup broken nuts. Pour into an unbaked pie crust. Bake 10 minutes in a hot oven and 35 minutes in a moderately slow oven.

The pie is done when it is quivery in the center. It will thicken as it cools.

Now for those school lunch boxes.

A fruit loaf intrigues youngsters because of the delightful flavor. Mix $\frac{1}{2}$ cup prunes, 1-3 cup chopped figs and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped dates with $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups boiling water. Soak 10 minutes and then fold in 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons fat, melted, $2\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour, $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1 cup graham flour. Pour into 2 loaf pans, lined with waxed paper. Let rise 15 minutes and bake an hour in a moderate oven. Cool, wrap in waxed paper and store in the bread box. This bread will keep a week.

Peanut Butter Cinnamon Rolls
2 cakes compressed yeast
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup lukewarm water
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup milk, scalded
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup peanut butter
5 cups sifted flour (about)
2 eggs, well beaten
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Currants

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Add $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, salt and shortening, add peanut butter and beat. Add 2 cups flour and beat until smooth. Add yeast and eggs, blending thoroughly. Add flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in lightly greased bowl. Brush top with melted shortening, cover, and store in refrigerator. When ready to use, remove dough from refrigerator and let stand in warm room about 1 hour before molding. Turn out on lightly floured board, knead slightly and roll $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick. Cream together butter, 1 cup sugar, and cinnamon. Place 1 teaspoon of mixture and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon water in each section of greased muffin pan. Spread dough with remaining butter-sugar mixture and sprinkle with currants. Roll as for jelly roll, sealing edges. Cut in 1-inch slices. Place cut-side down in prepared muffin pans. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from pans at once.

These Women!

Alice Marble, America's tennis queen, lives several lives in one. The blonde Californian, who balances four national tennis championship crowns on her sun-tanned brow, expects to handle as many different jobs this winter.

Twice a week during the football season she broadcasts over a New York station (WNEW), a pert report of the nation's gridiron events. Friday evenings she forecasts scores of 45 big college games for the coming week-end. Saturdays she compares her predictions with the final scores and describes the games.

The studio says that, so far, she has been right eighty per cent of the time. She is at ease in front of the microphone too—zips along in a breezy style.

Scoring football games comes natural to Alice. She played football with her brothers and learned its fine points from them before she ever touched a tennis racket. The young Marbles used to score football games together by the hour. Now Alice devotes part of her talks to explaining the game's intricacies so women can understand.

Between broadcasts the girl who now holds more tennis honors than any other woman, will lecture in towns in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New England on "The Will to Win." The talk is aimed at

And Now Mrs. Roosevelt Can Be Mrs. Roosevelt Again

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—These past few months of bitter political wrangling have seen the personality of a woman almost as much of an issue as WPA or TVA.

That has never happened in this country before.

But Eleanor Roosevelt was—and quite probably will continue to be—a national issue.

The lady, herself, went "off the record" for the campaign, and nearly "off the record" as a woman an can who is a seasoned political campaigner and who, as does her husband, "likes a good fight."

She went off the record after a dramatic air trip to the Chicago convention in July to make a brief speech. It was hoped her appearance would heal the wounds of that meeting.

The President, in a radio speech to the convention, referred to "my good wife," thereby recognizing publicly among his party workers that his wife is a party force to reckon with, either on or off the record.

Saw More of Family
In 1936, as well as this year, Mrs. Roosevelt took advantage of the campaign to see more of her family. Roosevelt critics pointed out that Mrs. Roosevelt thereby created a picture that certainly couldn't hurt a campaign. But her friends reported that she looks forward to her off-the-record spells with the family.

In spite of her efforts to "lie low," she was an issue.

She was attacked for belonging to the American Newspaper Guild.

That charge brought her "on the record." To the press she stated that no member has a right to leave an organization until he has done his best to make the organization "useful." She added that she would remain in the Guild to fight the Communists.

Some of her New York neighbors donned campaign buttons that read "We don't want Eleanor either." This she ignored.

She was lured out of her political silence again, however, when her son, Elliott, enlisted in the army and was appointed a captain.

She said, "I think it was the right thing for him to do. He never would have been taken in the draft. You know he is 30, and he has a wife and two children."

New Wardrobe Cue
In the heat of the campaign she took time to buy a fall wardrobe: Six costumes which were called her "campaign outfit." That brought a laugh from her and a statement that she would take no part in the campaign.

If some of the gallantry toward a lady was missing on one side of the picture, it popped up in a new place—on a picket line.

Her son, James, was sponsoring a motion picture. The world premiere was scheduled for a Philadelphia theatre which was picketed by the A. F. of L. musicians' union.

It was supposed that Mrs. Roosevelt would want to be present for her son's sake.

So the union wrote her that it would withdraw the picket line for the opening night if she wanted to attend. She had refused at other times to walk through picket lines.

She solved the tangle by saying she had not planned to attend.

No Change Likely
In the four years to come she is likely to take a lead from her husband's victory speech at Hyde Park when he said, "you will find me the same Franklin Roosevelt you have known for many years."

Eleanor Roosevelt is not likely to drop her constant interest in NYA, housing, food plans, and what not. She takes her appearance seriously, so seriously that she over-rode friends' advice in Washington one day when she had five scheduled appearances and a sixth was asked by a group running off a small charity bazaar.

The place would be crowded, stuffy. She could say "no," and plead an already full program.

She decided to go. Her reason: "You know they'll sell me if I show up just to see the President's wife, no matter who she is."

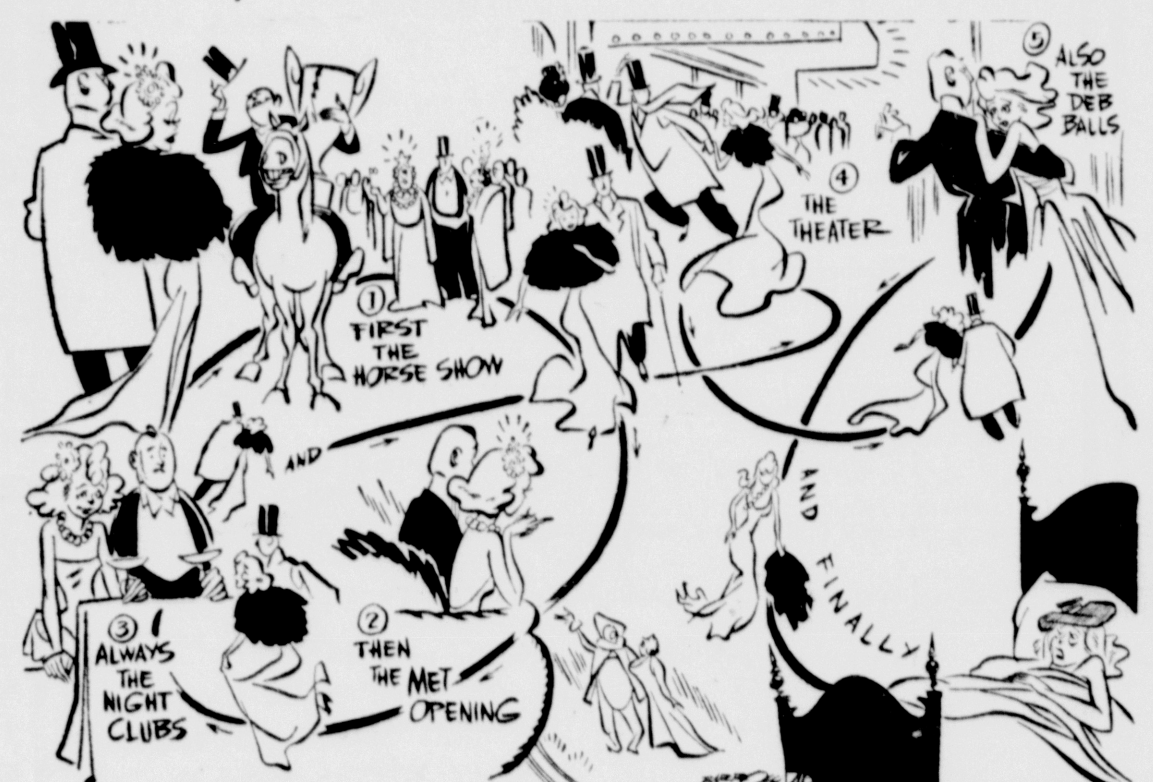

New Fox Skin
Toronto—With a view of developing a new strain of foxes to furnish furs which will rival platinum in beauty and price, Canadian National Express recently handled a shipment of live New Brunswick platinum foxes to experimental ranches in Ontario and Alberta. The platinum, graceful and beautiful animals, will be crossed with the so-called white face or ring-necked foxes in an effort to obtain rare and beautiful pelts. The consignment of live platinum was valued at more than $100,000.

New Use for Bread
To remove crayon marks from wallpaper, lightly rub the stains with a crust of bread. Carefully dust off the crumbs with a soft brush or cloth.

Prune Stuffing
Prune stuffing gives a grand flavor to veal or pork steak. Make up your usual savory stuffing and put in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped cooked prunes for each two cups of bread.

Society Marches On - Horseback

By AMY PORTER
AP Feature Service Writer
New York—If there were no more horses in the world, goodness knows what would become of New York society.

Each fall the solemn ritual of the Horse Show signals the opening of the winter social season. For this event, ladies put on great clanking jewels, men grow half a foot taller by means of stovepipe hats, and anybody can see who in the audience are merely people and who are Society.

This year, as always, the most notable notables in the city gathered in circus-smelling Madison Square Garden to witness high jumps, low jumps, foreigners in uniform, and each other.

Metropolitan Next
Soon the Metropolitan Opera will open, with the carriage trade again in be-jeweled attendance. These two duties disposed of, society can relax and scatter to enjoy itself in night clubs, theatres, resorts.

To a non-horsey person, this year's Horse Show moved creakily, and looked to be in need of some snappy Billy Rose direction. But it was dressy enough with furs by the hundreds, with gold lame, with feathers.

There was the woman with the star sapphire necklace, so starchy you could see the five-point pattern across the arena. There was the grande dame in an afternoon suit of black silk who drove a four-wheeled chariot around the ring. There was the one who murmured a swear word when she stuck a high heel through the net of her trailing skirt.

Training for Debuts
There were sub-debutantes, training for next month's debuts, girlishly dressed, with bright colored bows in their hair. There was a woman who wore champagne stockings and coral-colored slippers, a girl with a red apple nestling in her coiffure. And there was Joan Crawford, bearing trophies.

Mrs. James Farley, resplendent in foxes and diamonds, powdered her nose with a great big powder puff, and Madame Felipe Espil, wife of the Argentine ambassador, said "Excellent!" when the international jumping teams jumped.

To Charity Ball
After the show, a large part of the audience moved on to the Bundles for Britain charity ball at the Waldorf-Astoria. There the handsomest gowns from the recent much-publicized American fashion openings appeared in action, though most of them had been made a bit more modest as to neckline than they were when mannikins wore them. Very sheer cloth of gold swirled next door to pink mousseline de soie with tiers of black lace ruffles.

The setting, the gowns, the girls were perfect, and the conversation... Well, one girl stuck her finger in her mouth and said to her partner, "It's this tooth right here, see. The filling came out and it hurts."

Select Drapes to Set Off Blonde Hair

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer
Time was when all you considered probably was the color of your hair (and maybe your eyes) in buying the right color clothes. No red for redheads. No green for green eyes.

Today you probably choose a green dress that makes your eyes look greener. That used to be out of the question.

You've had specialists in department stores and beauty salons tell you that there is a shade of red a redhead can wear.

You've learned to avoid white powder and get a powder that blends better with your skin.

Your rouge is supposed to complement not only your skin but your hair and eyes.

Basically your lipstick is chosen according to your type as a redhead, towhead, mouse-colored hair, black or brown. And because your skin likely corresponds in tone-color.

But you may be one of the lovely women whose black hair shines above a pale skin. Then you've got to think of that too. Lately the word has gone around rapidly that your home is at its best if it also has interior decoration according to your color personality. Your draperies and walls ought to be the colors that show up your blonde beauty, experts are saying.

For some time you've heard the advice to match your jewels, nail polish or lipstick. And costume jewelry is appearing in powder tins. If you are blonde with dresden skin and want to twine pearls in your pompadour, you can get pearls in a rose hue.

Brunette...or...Blonde?

Your Screen Test

By ROBBIN COONS

1. Of the following movie series, which had the earliest origin in the talking screen: "The Hardy Family," "Charlie Chan," "The Higgins Family," "The Cisco Kid," "Dr. Kildare"? (If you recognize the girl in the picture, leading lady in the latest of one series, she'll answer for you—because that's the one.)

2. Your movie news review: (a) What revelation did Charlie Chaplin make at the New York premiere of his movie to bowl his audience over? (b) What redhead has "walked" on an assigned starring role in what picture, and what brunette has taken her place? (c) Which of the following actors registered for the draft: Robert Taylor, Gary Cooper, John Payne, Walter Brennan, William Holden, Clark Gable, Richard Greene?

3. What new movie title is a quotation from the Songs of Solomon—and can you complete the verse?

4. Identify these stars: (a) A redhead from Missouri who got her start by winning a Texas Charleston contest. (b) A New York blonde who came to Hollywood with Rudy Vallee's orchestra. (c) A Texas girl who won movie stardom on a stage-hit song, and (d) A blue-eyed Montanan whose first click was in a Ronald Colman picture.

5. Among the orchestra leaders now making movies, who is the brother of what singing star?

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent, and 90 or above is colossal.

HOSTESS SHOULD ALWAYS EXPLAIN THAT GUESTS ARE FILLING IN WHEN ASKED AT LAST MINUTE

Lack of This Frankness Shows Ignorance of the Entire Convention, Emily Post Says

When asking some one to a party to take the place of one who has given out at the last minute, the hostess must of course explain the situation by saying frankly: "Will you do me a favor and fill in for Mary Jones (or John Jones) at dinner tonight?"

Any attempt to cover up the truth is not only false but showing ignorance of the entire convention. An example of this ignorance is displayed in the following letter:

"I rather resented not being told by our neighbors that they were inviting us to fill in at their party. They gave us every impression that the party was gotten up at the last minute. When we got there it was certainly quite evident that there had been much preparation and I began to feel that we were second choice. Shouldn't they have told us with as much honesty as we are given?"

As already said, your hostess should have told you that the Browns couldn't come, and you should not have felt "second choice." To be asked to fill in is taken by most of us as a high compliment since only those who are intimate friends and especially liked are asked to do this. Your hostsess turned the whole situation upside down by being untruthful.

In this case you were right to object to her falsehood—but not to the fact that you were invited second. There were probably scores who might have been asked equally well to fill in for one pair of Browns.

The Bridesmaids' Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Post: Is pink the typical color scheme for a luncheon for the bride and her attendants? Please tell me whether place cards should be used.

Answer: Bridesmaids' roses are probably chosen for this party because of their name. That they happen to be pink may be why the color scheme of a bridesmaids' luncheon is often pink. This means that favors on such a table are pink, too. If the lunch is for more than eight, it is best to use place cards to seat your table.

Half-Grown Boy and Girl in Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think it unsuitable to have two young persons—a boy and girl, both aged twelve—walk together in the wedding procession? The girl is the bride's only sister and the boy is her cousin—both counting on taking part in some way.

Answer: If they were little children, it would be charming to have them walk up the aisle hand in hand. But twelve is really too old for them to do this. They would look too much like a bridesmaid and an usher, which is flagrantly wrong. It seems to me the best thing would be to have the girl a junior bridesmaid, and if there is no one else to walk with her, she could lead the bridesmaids. The boy could take the rib-

Don't Scoff at Dreams; Learn Their Meanings

They Have Messages for You

"What a silly dream I had," you say.

"I was sitting in the dentist's chair. He was pulling one of my teeth. But I kept crying 'No, No' and he couldn't extract it."

Far from being silly, your dream may have sober significance, a real message. Many dreams do.

Perhaps you subconsciously wish to break an engagement, to dismiss a suitor. That desire is symbolized in your dreams by the tooth extraction. Your protest is your distaste for hurting people.

Don't disregard dreams. Occurring while your subconscious mind has full play, they often reveal important inner facts about yourself.

To dream of being unable to move in the face of danger can signify a paralyzing lack of self-confidence. What psychologists call the cosmic dream—in which you are alone amidst sea and sky—is a sign you want to run away from your problems.

Or do you dream of dark places or of struggling through tangled underbrush?

Find the meanings of such significant dream symbols and images in our 32-page booklet. A noted psychologist helps you to recognize and interpret your sleep adventures, unmask and banish inner worries. Discusses dreams that come true.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of THE MEANING OF DREAMS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Fears and worries must be avoided, Dr. Margaret Wylie, psychologist at the New York state college of home economics, warned more than 100 homemakers and professional economists who attended a statewide meeting here recently.

bons down and fasten them just before the bride's mother is to be seated. Or if he is big for his age, he might be an usher if you can provide some one to walk with him. A lone usher looks very awkward and out of place.

Solo Clarinetist

Robert Willaman

The advance sale of tickets for the Ulster County Symphony Orchestra concert to be given at the High School Auditorium Tuesday evening, November 26, would indicate that the people of the entire county and vicinity are appreciative of the honor of having a symphony orchestra of their own with such a mastery as Willem F. conductor as George Hagstrom, who is also conducting symphony orchestras in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Middletown.

Several artists of note will appear with the orchestra. Robert Willaman of Salt Point is the noted solo clarinetist, formerly solo clarinetist with Sousa and also with the Pryor and Pershing bands.

For six years he was first clarinetist over Station WOR. He has concluded a two years of work as first clarinetist with "The Tritons," the official New York World's Fair Band.

Oboist is Mrs. John J. Morrow of Poughkeepsie, who while still in high school was a pupil of Alfred Barthel, and won a scholarship to Interlochen where she spent two summers under such conductors as Stock, Howard Hansen, Gabriowitsch and Verbruggen.

Later she studied at Columbia and Chicago conservatories, became a member of the Chicago Civic Orchestra under Delamarter and of the Chicago Women's Symphony under Ebba Sundstrom.

Music lovers will hear these wood winds at their best in George Enesco's "Rumanian Rhapsody" Tuesday night.

George Finkel, cellist, of Woodstock, will appear with the orchestra, as well as several well known local musicians.

SLENDERIZING WORKDAY DRESS

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9519

Sew something simple yet becoming and cheerful for indoor wear! Here's just the thing in Pattern 9519—a Marian Martin design that will be very popular with maturely figured women for its no-fuss, neat style and slenderizing lines. The front panel goes all the way from shoulder to hem in a long, flowing line. Pointed waist-seams and double skirt panels at either side-front give added flattery and extra ease through the skirt. The sides of the front bodice are made on the bias for perfect fit and look smartly effective, especially if your fabric has a stripe or check in it. The back is very simple, cut in two pieces with darts for trim fit at the waist. Long or short sleeves are optional; a bow at the neck, a back-tying sash and bright button trim are all gay.

Pattern 9519 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Elastic Stockings

HERE at least are elastic stockings you won't mind wearing. They are so sheer they look like fine silk hose, and can be worn unrolled, and the lighter Laster yarns give you cool comfort, yet you get full support, too. And they can be washed frequently without losing their shape. Ask your doctor about Beru's Black Elastic stockings.

Future-Book For ALL-AMERICA

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

AS THE end of the football season approaches the list of candidates for the 1940 All-America team narrows down to a few dozen players who have managed to stand out consistently during the campaign. A single poor performance has eliminated many. Here are four high-ranking ones:

BOB NELSON, Baylor center on the 1939 A.P. second All-America, has made a spirited bid for top ranking this year.

JIMMY NELSON, Alabama's triple-threat halfback, was at his best in the Crimson's tough games with Tennessee, Kentucky and Tulane.

CHET GLADCHUCK of Boston College is perhaps the biggest center in the country. Foes bumping into him just stop. He's a ball-hawk, too.

JIM (SWEET) LALANNE, North Carolina passer, is one of the nation's top stars.

GEORGE FRANCK, swift halfback, has been the spearhead of Minnesota's powerful attack. This triple-threat ace was particularly effective in the Nebraska and Washington games.

BOB FOX, successor to George Cafego as the kingpin of the Tennessee backfield, sparked the Vols to their major win over Duke. He played well against Alabama until an injury removed him. This passer-punter-runner also is a great blocker.

Better Bowling

Andy Varipapa shows how to hold the two-hole bowling ball. The inset picture illustrates the method of holding the three-hole ball.

By ANDY VARIPAPA
Famous Bowling Authority

1. Selecting a ball: The fundamentals of all sports are very important and bowling is no exception. A bowler should select a ball that is suitable to his hand. The thumb hole must fit the thumb so that the held ball can be swung freely and released freely. If the thumb hole is too large, then the ball will drop out of the hand too soon. If the hole is too small, then the ball will stick to the thumb too long and result in what is called a "dead" ball when it hits the pins. As a result there will be no pin action. A person cannot bowl properly without a firm footing. A good pair of bowling shoes will be an aid.

A bowler may choose either a two or a three-hole ball. The thumb hole and the finger hole should be comfortable. In selecting the proper span for a two-hole ball put the thumb in the thumb hole spread your hand naturally toward the finger hole. The joint of the middle finger should span about one-quarter inch beyond the inside edge of the finger hole. For the three-hole ball the same requirements hold true except that the span for the ring finger hole should be about one-eighth of an inch longer.

Incidental intelligence from the southern front. . . . What the Sugar Bowl game fans down this way would really like to see is Tennessee vs. Texas Aggies. . . . Clemson has been kept busy all week denying rumors of rebellion on its grid squad. . . . Right when the Tigers are on the threshold of the Southern Conference championship, too. . . . ## Employment Gain Of 61 in October Recorded in City

Kingston had a total of 61 persons placed in public and private employment it was announced today by the Division of Displacement and Unemployment Insurance, State Department of Labor.

Records for the same month show 367 placed in public and private employment and 160 in Poughkeepsie.

In Newburgh, however, 305 of the placements were listed as temporary, while in Poughkeepsie 103 of the 160 placed were given regular employment.

Figures for Kingston show that 21 of the 61 obtained regular employment, 35 temporary, with seven placed in manufacturing, 23 in domestic and five in public employment.

The Albany bureau reports that the continued increase in placement activities throughout the state during October "offers concrete evidence of general improvement in employment opportunities."

Jobs totaling 38,057 were filled in public and private employment, of which 36,294 were in private industry. The rise in private placements from September, when a 21-year record was set, was six per cent. The gain over October of last year, however, was 66 per cent.

It's a Doe, and Legal, Too

Rare prize for young hunter. A doe deer and legal too. David Murray, Jr., 20 years old, of Glenmont, shown with deer he killed last Monday near Windham, Greene county. Although a female, animal possessed a natural growth of antlers—16 points. Conservation Department officials investigated and substantiated the facts—and said Murray was within the law in shooting the supposed buck. It is one of the rarest freak specimens ever brought to the attention of the department. Conservation law reads that a person may take one wild deer having horns not less than three inches in length.

Quarrel Develops Over Use of Plows By County Workers

drivers lifted their plows to prevent plowing in stations.

Decent Thing to Do

Mr. Roosa said that in cases of illness or death the county tried to plow out roads to permit doctor or undertaker to get to the place and it was a decent thing to do.

Mr. Schuler replied that instances to which he referred had nothing to do with illness.

Then Supervisor DuBois of Olive suggested Schuler look up the highway law and ascertain whether the county had the right to plow out drives.

At this point Mr. Schuler said he had been in a store once when a minister made a statement that he could not get out after a storm because he lived on a private lane and his private road was not plowed "because I am not a politician." Schuler said he had not entered into the discussion.

Supervisor Smith of Shandaken said he did not believe the county superintendent authorized plowing out private roads.

At this point Supervisor Rifenburg of the Second ward said that Mr. Schuler had made a statement that the county superintendent permits plowing out of driveways, and "if so we want to know it. We are here to represent the people but I know the county has one of the best superintendents of highways in the state."

"If you want to find out about it you don't have to go further than the State Highway Department, and this is Democratic, but you will find the State Highway Department gives Mr. Loughran credit for being one of the best county superintendents in the state. I for one won't sit and see Mr. Schuler criticize the department unjustly. Our department is good and efficient and gets out after a storm. It is not for us to say when the equipment should get out, we should leave that to the efficiency of the department," concluded Mr. Rifenburg.

Supervisor O'Neill of the 13th ward said it was commonly known that drives were plowed out and if it was done in case of sickness or death "then there must be many sick and dead Republicans."

No Facts Before Board

Chairman Wadlin ruled that there were no facts before the board and said that there may be cases where private drives could properly be plowed but there were no facts before the meeting upon which any action could be taken.

Supervisor Rifenburg called attention of Mr. O'Neill to the fact that in the city the city plowed out in front of places where there had been a death or where a doctor was needed and he said it was only "common decency" whether it was the law or not.

Later Mr. Schuler said he would produce facts at the proper time if they were wanted.

The committee of purchase of rights of way reported that during the past year $10,605 had been paid out for purchase of rights of way and asked that $80,000 be raised for purchase of rights of way for use next year. The resolution for raising the fund was offered by Supervisors Sutton, Snyder, Smith and Kelsch and went over under the rule.

Supervisors DuBois and Duffy moved that $10,000 be raised under section 320-a for town aid for highways construction, improvement and maintenance. Over under the rule.

Equalization Report

The committee on equalization reported its recommendations for equalization rates for the year and later Supervisor Cashdollar for the committee moved the rates be adopted. Supervisor Wood of Hurley said he had an objection but when the matter went over under the rule until Monday evening he did not press his objection at the moment. The rates as recommended by the committee contain but five changes from last year. Hurley is reduced from 78 per cent to 65 per cent, Marlborough increased from 32 per cent to 33 per cent,

Rochester is raised from 32 per cent to 46 per cent, Rosendale is dropped from 42 per cent to 39 per cent, and Wawarsing is raised from 46 per cent last year to 47 per cent.

The table as presented for 1940 is:

Denning 44 per cent, Esopus 38 per cent, Gardiner 52 per cent, Hardenbergh 57 per cent, Hurley 63 per cent, Kingston town 52 per cent, Kingston City 73 per cent, Lloyd 55 per cent, Marlborough 61 per cent, Marlborough 33 per cent, New Paltz 42 per cent, Olive 75 per cent, Plattekill 31 per cent, Rochester 46 per cent, Rosendale 39 per cent, Saugerties 53 per cent, Shandaken 60 per cent, Shawangunk 75 per cent, Ulster 37 per cent, Wawarsing 47 per cent, Woodstock 73 per cent.

Clerk Simpson notified supervisors to get returned school taxes in by the end of next week since December 1 was the dead line.

The committee on TB Hospital and Laboratory will meet Wednesday at the TB Hospital at 5:15 o'clock.

The board adjourned until Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

DUBINSKY AFTER FIST FIGHTS

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, describes a series of fist fights he says he had with Joseph Fay, vice-president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, in the lobby of a New Orleans hotel during the American Federation of Labor convention. Dubinsky, whose mouth was swollen, said the dispute was over an anti-racketeer resolution submitted to the convention.

C. I. O. WORKMEN STRIKE AT ALUMINUM PLANT

A crowd of strikers and onlookers gathers in front of the Aluminum Company of America plant at New Kensington, Pa., after a walkout of C. I. O. workmen over a dispute involving one worker. Some 7,500 employees were made idle, and work on aviation and other army contracts was stopped. Spokesmen for the C. I. O. union asserted the company refused to discharge a workman who allegedly threatened a union official.

What Makes Americans Laugh?

(AP) Feature Service

JOE E. Brown: "It's always been my theory that comic acrobatic and facial expressions make them laugh. I can tell some very unfunny gag, something right out of Joe Miller's joke book, give it funny fall or a mug and it will be a howl. Without the acrobatics it would be just another Joe Miller. Don't ask me why."

Art Show Opens Monday at Noon

City's Largest Exhibition Has Nearly 100 Works

Kingston's first major art exhibit in recent years will open Monday at noon in observance of National Art Week at the municipal auditorium.

Included in the show are works by artists in the city and county not identified with the famous colony at Woodstock but the latter place is impressively represented by a number of paintings by some of the more prominent resident artists.

The display perhaps will impress the public with the fact that Ulster county is equipped better than most similar counties in the nation to make its own public art conscious and few will have more outstanding work displayed during this week dedicated to art.

It is not intended to be just another art exhibit, however, but one in which the major purpose is to sell the work of the artists and to help fulfill the purpose of the slogan: "American Art in Every American Home," all of the exhibitors have reduced prices of the works.

The public will have a chance to vote for its favorite in the show and blanks have been provided by the committee in charge for the voting. The exhibit will continue through to December 1 and will be open each day from noon until 10 o'clock in the evening.

Leahy to Succeed Bullitt as U. S. Minister to Vichy

the United States last July. Bullitt handed in his resignation November 7 but said immediately afterward that he was still ambassador to France, indicating that it was not accepted at that time.

In diplomatic quarters here, reports increased that Mr. Roosevelt had made another choice after Pershing turned down the position, and that this had been submitted to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's government for approval.

Bullitt's name figured in talk of a possible successor to Joseph P. Kennedy as ambassador to Great Britain, but it was reported he would decline that position if it was offered. Kennedy, who still holds the ambassadorship, returned to the United States shortly before the general election and broadcast a speech in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, ambassador to the Polish government in exile in London, has been mentioned as a likely choice for the British mission, as has Marshal Field of New York.
